

STATION 15 Former Plowed Field

This pine grove, partly bordered by a stone wall, may have been a plowed field at one time. The width of the stone wall, a pile of stones in one corner and the obvious absence of stones on the surface all indicate that stones had have been removed. White pines often grow in abandoned fields, another indication that the area was cultivated.